

MOTIVATIONAL ESSAY

My name is and I graduated the "....." High School (Bucharest), Intensive English Philology profile, July 2021 session.

I have always wondered what life would be like without communicating with one another, without having relationships of any kind, without interacting.

Never imagining that it would be possible, life quickly has given me an answer while the well-known lockdown.

So, being in this situation and having much more time for myself, I was able to analyze carefully what would define me as a future job, how I would like to live further, meaning which faculty should I go to, a faculty with lots of possibilities, whose courses will lay on various domains of applicability.

Without a doubt, I chose the Faculty of International Economic Relations (in English) within the Academy of Economic Studies in Bucharest, a reference faculty at national and European level, which prepares graduates with a high level of performance in a global environment under the pressure of rapid change.

And I know this faculty will suit me perfectly. Because it refers to building bridges among people, whether they are economic or of any other nature. It also refers to strong relationships and proper communication, while creating a better world.

I found out about this faculty through the internet, on its website, but also from former students who urged me to take this step, to be one of its graduates.

Studying at the Faculty of International Economic Relations in English will help me gain new important knowledge for my future career, from international business management and international economics, to economic diplomacy, international logistics or financial risk management.

All these are solid arguments for a successful career that starts since the student years, knowing that this faculty has a lot of opportunities for those who want to improve their skills, by participating in international mobilities and internships (national and international) at renowned companies.

I am convinced that I will have the chance to attend courses held by passionate professors who will surely inspire me, motivate me to evolve during not only the three years of college but also afterward, because I know that a master degree in the field is the next step, this being an imperative when it comes to deepening and specializing.

In this respect, in the four years of high school, I participated in various volunteer activities at ADRA and I am positive that the experience I gained during this period will be very useful to me in my years of college.

At the same time, in order to be more experienced, while studying at this faculty I would like to get involved in as many activities, events or projects for my personal development and also to participate in cultural activities, debates, free discussions, this being a real advantage when integrating into the labor market.

Overall, I am convinced that being one of your students will greatly contribute to my personal development and I am looking forward to joining its dynamic community.
